WORSTEDS

In Mixtures, Checks and Overplaids,
Are the Popular Stuffs This Season

Worsted cloth is made from long, pure strands of woolen yarn; when that yarn is Australian stock, a splendid wearing, dust shedding fabric is the result. Such woolens cannot, as a rule, be sold for less than $25 a suit. By purchasing at bedrock prices and cutting our profits a shade, we are able to show you twenty-five styles of Australian stock worsteds, goods that you cannot buy elsewhere at less than $25, all at one price.

Suits to Order,
$20.00.

REMEMBER—If linings do not outwear cloth, we replace linings free of cost, and if a garment doesn't fit, it is ours, not yours.

Trousers are our specialty. We always quote them at cost of making. Regular $6.50 to $10.00 values go here—

Trousers to Order,
$5.00 and $6.50.

STILL HOPE FOR RETURN OF WENTZ

No Satisfactory Theory of His Disappearance and the Family Know Nothing.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch)
BRISTOL, TENN., April 30.—It was on the 14th day of October, 1903, that Edward L. Wentz, the young millionaire coal operator, disappeared on the Black Mountain, in Wise county, Virginia. Although more than six months have passed since that fateful day, it may be stated on good authority that from the hour when young Wentz was seen riding along the public highway near the village of Appalachia, at the mouth of Roaring Fork gorge, on the day he disappeared, nothing whatever has been seen or heard of him, and his strange disappearance is as much a mystery to-day as it has been at any time.

There was an impression that young Wentz had been found in a demented condition, and that the family had secretly committed him to an asylum for the insane, but this report seems to have been without foundation.

Col. C. H. Nimson, who was raised in the community where the Wentzes were brought up, and who knows the family well, states that he knows positively that the Wentz family know absolutely nothing of what became of the missing young man. Up to the time Colonel Nimson left Pennsylvania for the south, a month ago, nothing whatever had been heard by the family of the fate of Edward L. Wentz.

From all that can be learned there is no satisfactory theory as to the probable fate of the young man. All investigation reverts back to the starting point, to the fatal hour when the young man disappeared.

Notwithstanding the entirely hopeless aspect of the case, the family has not given up hope. Correspondence in the office of the attorneys of the family here shows that the search has not been abandoned, and that the detectives are still on the alert, trusting in the final triumph of the detective's art, which so seldom encounters a mystery that cannot in some way be mastered. Perhaps a more puzzling case never presented itself in the history of this country.

Rewards aggregating $5,000, with hundreds of drowsy men anxious not only to gain the reward money, but particularly anxious for the reputation of having unraveled the mystery, it has still not shown the least sign of yielding to the cunning of the best detectives.

EGG-EATING DOG.

Another Receipt for Curing Him Surely.

I notice in last week's copy of the Times-Dispatch someone inquiring for a remedy to stop dogs from sucking eggs, and the answer was given to put red pepper in the eggs and let the dog find them. Now that may be a good remedy but I believe I know a better one. I don't know of a case it has failed to cure when used by directions. This is how an old darky describes its effects: he had heard something about the remedy and came in one day and said he wanted some of dam stuff what stop dogs from sucking eggs. He said he had a good dog which sucked all the eggs he could find, and he wanted to cure him without killing him.

I fixed up the dose and told him how to use it, and the next time I saw him I asked how it worked. He said it was alright and that dog would sleep in the next right alongside the eggs and would not eat them at all.

The remedy is simple, just break a little hole in the end of the egg, pour out a little, then put three or four grains of Tartar Emetic in paste in a little piece of tissue paper over the hole, use the albumen itself to make the paper stick. Then put the egg where the dog can find it. If you give it to him it will arouse his suspicions.

This dose may have to be repeated the second time, while the third dose makes the cure final.

After the first dose the dog, perhaps in dog language, thinks eggs don't exactly agree with him.

The second dose makes him strongly suspicious, and after the third he concludes that eggs are deadly poison, fit only for people to eat. I never knew this to kill a dog or to do him any serious injury, but it makes him suddenly sick in the stomach, vomiting and disgusted with life, with eggs in particular.

Mr. Editor I think if you publish this it will be appreciated by many who want to prevent their dogs from sucking eggs without having recourse to a shotgun.

HORSES AND HORSEMEN

Some Crisp News Notes From Winston-Salem,
N. C.

TROTTERS AND PACERS THERE

Dart, 2:08½—Foals at Ellerslie. Virginians Win at Boston. Happy Tie, 2:25½.

Under date of April 25th, Mr. J. G. Sterling, of Winston-Salem, N. C., sends the following crisp news items concerning the horse interest there:

These bright spring days naturally draw our citizens out to the country and quite naturally many stop at the stables of Price Neely at the Piedmont race track to admire the nice lot of horses which he has in charge.

Neely's stables should be visited by "Broad Rock" for he is a lover of the horse and could do Neely's string credit, but not since his good pacer Princelet, 2:23 1-4 left our track has he been here."

It would do him good to see quarters done in 32 and halves in 10 and 12.

Mr. W. N. Reynolds' Pal Medium, pacer 2:18 1-4, by Robert Medium, out of dam of Rubico, 2:23 1-4, is among the latest comers for Neely's training. He is looking fine and his owner has every reason to be proud of him. He will make several horses go some this coming season.

Bobbie H., 2:23 1-4, by Winfield, dam by Almesboy, is another most promising pacer and as for looks one would have to travel far and wide to see his equal. He made his record last fall at the Raleigh fair. He is owned by Mr. W. M. Hayes.

Shopho, pacer, 2:29 1-4, out of dam of Eastside, 2:19 1-4, has been with Neely since last fall and is showing remarkable speed. That she is one of the fastest pacing mares in this section has long been known, but she had such an erratic temperament that it was difficult to control her speed. Neely has her in good shape now and great things are expected. She is owned by Mr. J. R. Green.

...the trotting line there is Katie Campbell, 2:21 1-4, out of dam of Eastside, 2:19 1-4, who has been with Neely since last fall and is showing remarkable speed. That she is one of the fastest pacing mares in this section has long been known, but she had such an erratic temperament that it was difficult to control her speed. Neely has her in good shape now and great things are expected. She is owned by Mr. J. R. Green.
